Four with ties to Regina inducted into GCAC Hall of Fame

Two women and two men with past ties to Regina Dominican were inducted into the Girls Catholic Athletic Conference (GCAC) Hall of Fame March 10 in recognition of their accomplishments as athletes or coaches.

Kerry Durham, a member of Regina Dominican's Class of 1985, was an all-conference basketball and softball player while at Regina and was named to the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) third team in basketball. She was also the team captain and Most Valuable Player of the basketball team at Xavier University in Ohio. Ms. Durham is currently the head girls' basketball coach for Resurrection.

Ms. Caryl Eddy, one of the founders of the GCAC, chaired Regina Dominican's Physical Education Department from 1971 to 1998. As the school's basketball coach, she won three conference titles. Ms. Eddy was active in the GCAC, serving as first recording secretary and as the president. She holds one of the highest win records in the history of girls' basketball in the state.

Thomas Gattuso, currently principal at Sullivan Alternative High School in Chicago, was a social studies teacher and basketball coach at Regina Dominican in the late 1970s and early 1980s. He was head girls' basketball coach at St. Gregory for 20 years, capturing seven regional championships and one sectional championship.

Rich Majcin, long-time softball coach at Regina Dominican, retired last year. He has served at St. Francis Xavier School in Wilmette since 1969, as athletic director, physical education and mathematics teacher, and, for the last 20 years, assistant principal. He is the only coach in IHSA history to bring home regional championships in three sports and, between his coaching at Regina Dominican and St. Francis Xavier, has won more than 500 games. His wife, Geraldine Majcin, taught English at Regina Dominican for more than 25 years and served as moderator of the Student Council for over 20 years.
